Michael Christie, Conductor

Prokofiev, Peter and the Wolf
(with narrator)

Part 1
Peter explores the outside world. He meets a duck, a cat, and a bird. Then he goes to play with his grandfather. A wolf is in the danger of his life.

Part 2
A wolf approaches the group and uses his power on their minds. He takes the cat, the bird, and the duck.

Part 3
The wolf is in danger. Peter is in danger. The wolf is in danger.

Lucia Albinana - Artist Statement

Art is my favorite obsession. It started in first grade, and grew into an incredible experience I would never take back. I have trained in many creative backgrounds, such as drawing, photography, and printmaking.

But Graphic Design was always my true passion. I started my first professional internship when I was still in High School, and since then, I have trained in everything from screen-printing to event planning. Upon coming to Colorado State University I knew immediately that Graphic Design would be my profession. I come to you today to tell you that it was the greatest thing I ever did.

The art department is a home that fosters creativity and life. Within this home I found the courage to engulf myself in different media and topics in order to fully tell the story of each piece that I have generated. This has allowed me to grow overall as a person and a designer. Each piece that I have created fully illustrates what I am capable of and the potential that I have for success in the future.

WASHINGTON COMMANDERS MEGALODON

Meet the Mascot

"Estimated to have been around 50-78 feet long."

By: Bob Strauss

Not only was Megalodon the biggest prehistoric shark that ever lived, it was the largest predatory marine creature in the history of the planet.

Even fighting both modern

Great White Sharks and ancient reptiles like

Lycorodon and

Kocoussatus. Here

are 10 facts you may or may not have known about this lethal

predator. (See also a gallery of Megalodon pictures, read about the Discovery Channel show Megalodon: The New Evidence, and also learn why there are no giant sharks alive today.)

1. Megalodon's teeth were about 7 inches long...

Megalodon didn't earn its name ("giant tooth") for nothing. The teeth of this prehistoric shark were over half a foot long, serrated, and heart-shaped (by comparison, the biggest teeth of a Great White Shark are only about three inches long). You have to go back 65 million years—to none other than Tyrannosaurus Rex—to find a creature with consistently bigger choppers, though the canines of some saber-toothed cats also measured up.

2. ...and were once described as "tongue stones."

Because sharks are constantly shedding their teeth—thousands and thousands over the course of a lifetime—Megalodon teeth have been found all over the world, from antiquity to modern times. It was only in the 17th century that a court physician named Nicholas Steno identified peasants' prized "tongue stones" as shark teeth; for this reason, some experts describe Steno as the world's paleontologist!

Prokofiev, Peter and the Wolf
(with narrator)

Part 1
Peter explores the outside world. He meets a duck, and a cat. They proceed to play out like grandfather when he is a large in his way to go.

Part 2
A wolf approaches the group and waves hello on their meadow. He takes on stage, but he is made to be wary.

Part 3
Soon, he has an upper advantage. Peter sees upon the wolf and she is happy.
