City Complex Building

Dear Miss Fromm:

Please excuse our delay in answering your letter of October 31. We have been, since then, engaged in a search of our archives for a copy of the book you requested. Unfortunately, the book is out of print and we have been unable to locate a copy that anyone here is willing to part with.

I am enclosing a copy of "Where Steam Still Serves", a company publication that was produced when it became apparent that our steam locomotives on the GW Railway were ultimately going to disappear. I hope this will be of some value to you. There is no charge.

I certainly wish that there were one single, formal printed history of our Company that I could provide you, but none has been produced to date. There have been many times that this would have been most useful in my work.

We will keep our eyes open, as we may eventually run across an available copy of "The Grand Old Days of Great Western" for you.

Sincerely,

Larry L. McGhee, Director
Communications
