

Thematic Survey of the Beet Sugar Industry in Colorado

The finished product will be a small booklet (probably less than 50 pages) of information gathered on the beet industry in this state, listing additional sources of information to be used for additional study in the future as the need and interest arises. In addition to two copies of the report for the author, copies will be made for the instructors for the class (Lee Scamehorn at the University of Colorado and John Albright of the National Park Service) and for the State Historical Society of Colorado's Historic Preservation Office. A selection of photographs will be included in the report and copies of historical photographs gathered but not used in the report will be kept in the Society's photo collection.

The time I can spend on this project is limited to sixteen days, including the background research, survey, field work and writing of the report. A maximum of five days is all that I have to do any work with photographs, etc. at Great Western and of this time only a very minimal amount would require the time of GW employees.
