

MAYBE

For many a year I have been intrigued with "So live that when Thy summons comes Thou go not like a quarry slave at nite".
Who wrote it or when I do not recall.
I give credit to whom ever first put it down. And none to me.
The more I think on this saying the more it expands.
Now I know there are those who think not on the subject.
And there are those who make an effort in their lives.
As near as I know some are church goers some are not.
Each has his right to do as he sees it.
It is my opinion that going to church will do no wrong.
I have never found anyone's church hurting anyone, people do.
But how you treat those about you is another thing.
You all know the other guy is only a person as you are.
Each has his idea of right or wrong. (Churched or not)
Only some don't pick the bones of others.
With all the gossip and doings of others.
Just live and let live should be a good policy.
There are those who care little about Judgement Day.
And say it makes no difference
But to be on the safe side it might be best
To stop, take a look on what should be.
To live as today was the last that would ever be.
Would be better, To go to the box.
With others really thinking well of you
That you had lived a life.
Considering those other than yourself,
You had been of some service to other.
Held out a helping hand when you could.
To help do the things in life
Some for others not just yourself.
Now many judge success on what you have
Or over the years the things you hold so dear.
Power, money, position and all
And all longing to tell other what to do.
Seems to me the more power you possess
The more worldly goods you have accumulated.
Perhaps the more explaining you will have to do.
For there's many a poor soul
That has little or none of the above
That has slipped into eternity
That no excuse will make;
To be taken as is because they were poor,
Just as most of the world-masses are.
So whether you believe it or not
Each should live or will live as they desire.
But it might not be a bad idea to score some brownie points
Just in case you were wrong in your assessment of life
And you wake up to find
There is a Judgement Day.
