Colorado River Basin Salinity Control Advisory Council to Meet in October

The Colorado River Basin Salinity Control Advisory Council, which represents the water quality interests of the seven Basin States, will meet October 10, 1984, Acting Commissioner of Reclamation Robert A. Olson said today.

The meeting will start at 8 a.m. at the Americana Snow King Lodge located at 400 East Snow King Avenue in Jackson, Wyoming, Olson said. The public and interested organizations are invited to attend the meeting.

The meeting's agenda includes progress reports by the Department of the Interior, Department of Agriculture, and the Environmental Protection Agency on salinity control activities in the Colorado River Basin. The Council will also discuss salinity control activities and the preparation of their annual report.

All communications regarding this meeting, including request for time to make statements, should be addressed to Al Jonez, Chief, Colorado River Water Quality Office, Bureau of Reclamation, D-1000, Engineering and Research Center, P.O. Box 25007, Denver, Colo. 80225.

The Colorado River Basin Salinity Control Advisory Council was established by the Colorado River Basin Salinity Control Act of 1974 (P.L. 3-320) to act as liaison among the Departments of the Interior and Agriculture, the Environmental Protection Agency, and the Basin States. The goal of the act is to maintain salinity levels at or below the 1972 level while the Basin States continue to develop their compact-apportioned water supplies.
