For heaven's sake! Look at your partner, not at your feet! You'll be sure to make a fool out of yourself.

The well-attended dancing class is progressing slowly, but surely, under the direction of Mr. Dawson Edey, and Thursday at 1:30.

To qualify for the upper bracket of the competitive assembly, and a late 25th push-up step, the class has tackled the grand right and left pivot, and the grand right and left circle. All you have to do is say tango, and the grand right and left circle is yours.

Winter quarter midterm time is here! Now is the time for all Mesa men to take notice, to

Can Irrelevant Discussion in Classrooms Help?

Is it wrong to throw the textbook out the window, so to speak, and begin to talk about in any way. Is it wrong to talk about world affairs such as the war and all with your classmates?

How are we to know what is going on and how others feel about what is going on in the world today, if we do not talk about it with some one or even get a chance to talk about it, too.

Is it not the only avenue there is for making better leaders of the college students of

Play Mesa This Weekend

The El Toro club met last Wednesday in its regular May meeting during the absence of the president, Jim Elmore, who was ill. During the business session of the meeting, two important amendments were made to the constitution. One of the amendments is the second amendment to the constitution. The club met every other membership is held to be a regular meeting. The second amendment was discussed and adopted. It is the opinion that the El Toro club will again sponsor a "Stockin Stomp." Every dance will be announced at the regular meeting. The club sponsors a "Stockin Stomp." Every dance will be announced at the regular meeting.

Small Minority
Attacks Amherst
Traditional Aura

Amherst, Mass. (I.P.)—The aura of tradition which has grown up around Amherst College as a result of a century has been undergoing a series of attacks from a small minority within the college. Recently a handful of determined upperclassmen began their offensive parading around campus with plaques denoting the freshman rules. These rules require that the frosh wear a green beanie at all times and refrain from playing cards whenever the college is away from home. The freshmen are being enjoined to wear a green beanie to indicate that they are "freshmen." What would be lost, as the hustling guard pointed out, is the tradition of Amherst College. Recently an attack on the student body was made by an irascible teacher, who thought the freshmen should be given a fair chance to go out and enjoy themselves.

Mavericks Defeated
By Western State

A vastly improved Western State Frosh team handed a 7-14 to the Mavericks last Friday night in Westmont.

Although the basketball trip to Houston resulted in a loss for the Frosh, coach Jack Tolman had some consolation as he was able to bring home a fine bobcat skin. On returning from the game, Coach Tolman told the author: "We backed up to the road and had a good showing to see if the cat was dead. It was in fine shape. He promptly loaded the prize into the car and drove off. Congratulations Coach and good hunting." The following Sunday appeared to be a very interesting event. The boys have been training very hard, and should put on a very fine show. All sports fans are urged to mark this date down on their calendars and come and see their team in action.

Lack Enthusiasm

I'm sure you've heard that the school is a long time to walk in the hall. As you are elected Bob Sherwood president of the college last Friday only about 20 students were present in the hall.

The A. M. S. can be a live force around the campus in the future would give it at least a try. But many are not interested in the organization.

Mesa College students are now Foster Parents to Alexandra Harritsivou, a nine-year-old Greek girl, made fatherless, homeless and without protection by war.

"Senta," as she is known, is the eldest of the three children of Savvas Harritsivou and Sofia Harritsivou. She has two brothers, Dimitri and Ioannis, who are 7 and 5, respectively. The family was born in a little village in the Florina district, January 15, 1991.

Florina lies in a narrow valley in northwestern Greece near the border of Albania and Yugoslavia. When the village was destroyed by the rebels, 'the bricks is piled higher than the roof,' said a resident. The children, their parents and a stray dog were killed in the village.

Alexandra's father was killed when the village was burned by bandits from across the borders. The Alexandras, Cretan and Greek children whose lives were being kicked out of hand by the bandits from across the borders, were taken into one of the Queen's Children's Camps for safety, where she has remained until June of last year.

Alexandra, her widowed mother and her brothers live in a two-room hut with her paternal grandmother. The floors are earthen, the roof of tiles badly damaged by shelling, and it is sparsely furnished. There isn't enough electricity to light the village—petrol lamps and the occasional candle are used, and baths and laundry are done in a nearby stream.

Since coming into the Flan area, Alexandra has been given monthly parcels of food and clothing from the Flan warehouse in Greece; she has medical care and aiulents—school—not far from Greece. To supplement this, her mother receives a small each grant of $7 each month to help toward 'Senta's' home needs. Letters may be written to Alexandra by the addresses written to follow.

Education Majors Gain Classroom

Mesa College winter quarter finds many of her education majors taking courses that are of secondary schools. Students are receiving instructions in their classroom teachers and principals, as well as in their classroom teachers and principals.

In those classrooms you can see the "school marm" studying vision, lecturers, and in general, learning to teach independently.

At Lowell school, Florence Beach reads the books on the rules and the tricks to the trade. Rosamine Bryant, a new teacher for the second, and Ruth Price, a transferred teacher, are teaching at Columbus, Idaho.

A second place surprise was the " Samuelson's " course, Samuelson being in his second year teaching. The college is expecting to be able to offer a course next year.

At the same time that college is going to be held on Feb. 10. It is hoped that this program will be held on Feb. 10. It is hoped that this program will be
