Artist Statement:

Growing up, I always imagined myself scoring game-winning touchdowns or hitting buzzer-beaters in basketball. These childhood dreams sparked my love for sports. When I found graphic design, I realized I could bring these exciting moments to life visually. Mixing my passion for sports with creativity became my favorite way to express myself.

As a graphic design intern for Colorado State Athletics, I create graphics for social media, flyers, billboards, and digital marketing using Adobe Creative Suite. My goal is simple: to capture the excitement and spirit of athletics while engaging fans and supporting CSU's brand.

Working closely with the athletics team has taught me the importance of teamwork and staying organized. I use platforms such as Monday and Box to collaborate and keep projects running smoothly. Each project pushes me to try new things and improve my skills in typography, layout, and digital design.

Outside of my internship, I've worked on branding projects like RoboticReturns and SoSocialHughes, and created a photography-based magazine layout called "High Desert Photography." These experiences have helped me become a more versatile designer. Through my experiences, I've learned that understanding a brand will always be a crucial aspect of design.

Ultimately, I design to share the excitement and passion sports bring into my life. By blending creativity and strategy, I aim to create visuals that inspire and connect with others.
