PROJECT INTRODUCTION

Garden to Table is a program from CSU Extension that seeks to share information and tools about growing food and cooking healthy, easy, and tasty recipes for the entire family. Open to families and bilingual communities, the classes promote an inclusive environment where participants can experiment with planting and cooking and learn by doing.

WHAT I DID

- Learn from the community to engage targeted audiences
- Prepare recruitment material and invitations
- Delivered curriculum over two sessions
- Stayed connected with participants via email
- Collected and analyzed post course evaluations.
- Identified potential improvements that can be made to increase learning in the future.

INTERNSHIP GOALS

Prepare and deliver two hands-on classes about container growing and cooking with different produce and ingredients to diverse audiences in Pueblo, CO. and provide recommendations for improvement based on the program evaluation.

WHAT I LEARNED

- Recruitment strategies
- Importance of cultural dynamics and diversity
- How to prepare, execute, and evaluate programming to diverse audiences.
- Preparation and recruitment is key for program's success

NEXT STEPS

Use what we learned from this experience, recruitment, and participants' surveys and feedback for future classes and projects
