

GRAD592

The South Platte River: Colorado's Lifeblood

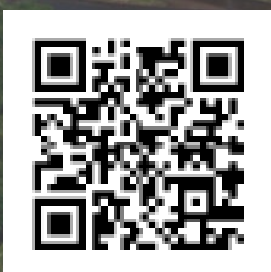

From the heart of Denver to the heartlands of the eastern plains, the South Platte River and its tributaries sustain Colorado's people, economies, and environment. Explore the complexities of one of Colorado's hardest working rivers.

Registered students must attend in person.

COLORADO WATER CENTER
COLORADO STATE UNIVERSITY

watercenter.colostate.edu/grad592

August 22

Introduction

August 29

Overview of the South Platte River Basin

Karen Schlatter, CoWC

September 5

Water Law & Governance of the SPRB

Jennifer Gimbel, CoWC

September 12

The South Platte & Nebraska

Jesse Bradley and Jeremy Gehle, Nebraska Dept. of Natural Resources

September 19

South Platte Management & Administration

Corey DeAngelis, Colorado Dept. of Natural Resources

September 26

Water Supply & Storage in the SPRB

Brad Wind, Northern Water

October 3

South Platte Regional Water Planning

Emily Hunt, City of Thornton

October 10

Urban Water Use & Conservation in SPRB

Tim York, City of Aurora

October 17

Agriculture in the SPRB

Joel Schneekloth, CoWC

October 24

Water Quality Issues in the SPRB

Tim Gates, Colorado State University

October 31

Species, Habitats, & Restoration in SPRB

Amy Ostdiek and Kara Scheel, Colorado Water Conservation Board

Greg Kernohan, Ducks Unlimited

November 7

Climate Change Impacts in the SPRB

Esther Vincent, Northern Water

Taylor Winchell, Denver Water

November 14

Environmental Justice and the South Platte

Tom Romero, Denver University

Paul Hellmund, El Laboratorio

November 21 – No Class

November 28

Dialogue on South Platte Challenges

Karen Schlatter, CoWC

December 5

Presentation of Final Papers

Faculty, students, and off-campus guests are welcome.