At IBE, we believe fun and sustainability go hand in hand. That's why we're inviting you — our closest collaborators — to an evening of friendship, inspiration, and connection with Amy Lukken, Chief Joyologist of Tito's Handmade Vodka.

After her years at Interface Carpet where she pioneered workplace joy, Amy helped bring Tito's mission of "turning spirits into love and goodness" to life. Through "Joy Budgets," employees fund causes they care about, fueling purpose from the inside out. The results speak for themselves: industry-low turnover, America's #1-selling spirit, and more than 12,000 grassroots projects supported.

Regenerative Design Whitepaper

Shifting Toward Regenerative Design

An Unconventional Guidebook for Designers,
Educators & Design Firm Leaders

Josette M. Plaut, M.S. and Elicia Rotajczyk, Ph.D.

In this time of profound change, many of us are seeking ways to contribute more meaningfully. IBE's new guidebook, Shifting Toward Regenerative Design, explores what it takes to move beyond mechanistic and humanistic approaches toward a regenerative paradigm rooted in living-systems thinking.

Drawing on decades of collective practice, including that of our friends at Ashley McGraw Architects, the paper offers fresh insights into the shifts in mindset, ways of being, and design practices needed to reimagine what designers — and the field of design — can make possible. We hope it sparks curiosity, dialogue, and new insights into your own work.

Regenerative Planning & Place Stewardship Course

SubscribePast IssuesTranslate ▼

Starting in January 2026, the Regenesis Institute will partner to launch a new team-based course in applied regenerative practice — one designed for city and county planners, landscape architects, and other land stewards.

Join with your team to deepen your collective capacity for place-sourced work grounded in living systems principles. Together, you'll learn to co-create places that align with local ecologies, strengthen communities, and build resilience in the face of regional and global challenges.
