

The Crosier Mountain

prescribed fire represents a significant accomplishment for Paul Gleason because it was so ecologically and operationally complex. Paul introduced a mixed mosaic of different forest conditions, including crown fire as well as fire on the ground, and succeeded in keeping the fire within the exact boundaries he had designated.