

Alissa Gigliotti

Along with science, I have always had a strong interest in the fine arts, particularly scientific illustration and graphic art. My background is in aquatic biology but I think and interpret visually. I'm also drawn to the arts for their potential as a means for communication and expression. I find that graphic design and illustration provide me with a way to convey my artistic and scientific passion through visual communication while offering a balance between the technical and creative.

LOCATIONS

The Alternative Break program is an immersion experience into different cultural, environmental and socioeconomic communities across the nation. Students provide service in exchange for education about current social and cultural issues facing the communities. Past trips have focused on such social/cultural issues as hunger, housing, homelessness, issues facing Native American living on reservations, environmental conservation, education, sustainability, and women's issues.

WHAT ARE YOU DOING FOR YOUR BREAK?

WHAT IS ALTERNATIVE BREAK?

The CSU alternative break program places teams of students in communities to engage in community service and experiential learning. This intensive immersion experience is designed to create active citizens, individuals who make the community a priority when making life choices. The communities that host teams may be near or far but one thing that they will have in common is an environment far different from that of a college campus. Many students have hailed the experience as fundamentally life-changing and the best week they've ever had.

ALTERNATIVE WINTER BREAK

The Kenya Alternative Winter break provides a unique opportunity for students to participate in service-learning while immersing students in local culture. Students will work with numerous organizations: the Umoja village, Gir Gir & Muslim Primary Schools, both K-8 local schools; the Samburu Youth Education Fund, a US-based non-profit that works to improve educational access; and Save the Elephants, a non-profit wildlife research organization.

ISN'T FOR SALE?

Market thinking so permeates our lives that we barely notice it anymore. A leading philosopher sums up the hidden costs of a price-tag society. By Michael Sandel

THERE ARE SOME THINGS money can't buy—but these days, not many. Almost everything is up for sale. For example:

- A prison-cell upgrade: $90 a night. In Santa Ana, California, and some other cities, nonviolent offenders can pay a clean, quiet jail cell, without any non-paying prisoners to disturb them.
- Access to the carpool lane while driving solo: $8. Minneapolis, San Diego, Houston, Seattle, and other cities have sought to ease traffic congestion by letting solo drivers pay to drive in carpool lanes, at rates that vary according to traffic.
- The services of an Indian surrogate mother: $8,000. Western couples seeking surrogates increasingly outsource the job to India, and the price is less than one-third the going rate in the United States.
- The right to shoot an endangered black rhino: $250,000. South Africa has begun letting some ranchers sell hunters the right to kill a limited number of rhinos, to give the ranchers an incentive to raise and protect the endangered species.
- Your doctor's cellphone number: $1,500 and up per year. A growing number of "concierge" doctors offer cellphone access and same-day appointments for patients willing to pay annual fees ranging from $1,500 to $25,000.
- The right to emit a metric ton of carbon dioxide into the atmosphere: $10.50. The European Union runs a carbon-dioxide-emissions market that enables companies to buy and sell the right to pollute.
- The right to immigrate to the United States: $500,000. Foreigners who invest $500,000 and create at least 10 full-time jobs in an area of high unemployment are eligible for a green card that entitles them to permanent residency.
- NOT EVERYONE CAN AFFORD to buy these things. But today there are lots of new ways to make money. If you need to earn some extra cash, here are some novel possibilities: w
- Sell space on your forehead to display commercial advertising: $10,000. A single mother in Utah who needed money for her son's education was paid $10,000 by an online casino to install a
